

FATHER AND SON FINED
FOR HOME DISTURBANCEResistance and Interference Alleged.
House Is Shot Up During Trouble.

J. R. Bell's resistance to arrest when police officers called at his home at 30 West Ninth street will cost him $90 and fifty days in jail if the county court upholds the punishment fixed by Judge Spitzer of the municipal court. His father was fined $25 and costs for interference.

Bell shot up his home and stood off the police last week. Two officers were sent to investigate a disturbance and according to their testimony found a room filled with powder smoke and J. R. Bell intoxicated and flourishing a six-shooter. J. J. Bell, the father, was arrested and the police left the son in charge of the house. Later he surrendered at the police station.

"I think that J. R. Bell committed an offense of as serious a nature as he could. When a man takes a gun and threatens to kill others, especially when they are officers doing their duty, he should be punished severely," Judge Spitzer declared in fixing an appeal bond of $500. The judge declared that the father may have acted for the best interests of the son and was trying to protect him, but that in spite of the circumstances he must be fined. Appeals were announced in both cases.

GOOD ROADS BOOSTER
CHEERED BY DINERSElectric Club Hears Talk Delivered by President of Retailers' Association

Wake up, Oklahoma City! This was the burden of an address by E. R. Thompson, president of the Retailers' association and good roads booster, delivered today noon in the Skirvin hotel before the Oklahoma City Electric club. His topic was good roads.

"Building of the Ozark trail road from Oklahoma City would mean more to this community than construction of a trunk railway," he said. "The trouble with our roads is that while we have spent huge sums of money on them it has not been spent correctly."

Mr. Thompson detailed events that occurred during the recent road building trip between here and Amarillo and at the conclusion of his talk was cheered to the echo.

MISSING DEED IS CHIEF FACTOR IN

tion of title being definitely settled. It was later stipulated that if the property was foreclosed, it should revert to the donor. The board of trustees borrowed $40,000, giving a mortgage on the property. Unable to pay the mortgage in installments brought foreclosure and up chase by Clasen interests. The school then owed $40,000, but Lambhach contended Clasen owed the school $40,000 on his promised $100,000 endowment. Clasen had promised to donate forty acres of land and $100,000 endowment if the church raised $120,000.

Claim Act's Invalidity. The church attorneys contend that the Epworth mortgage, in law, is a charitable mortgage; that, because of that, the agreement of the board of trustees in 1908 that the property be turned over to the donor was not valid. The annual conference of the M. E. church south refused to ratify the action of the board of trustees, and decided to continue operation of the school. The M. E. church (middle) ratified the board's action.

That turning of the trustees of the M. E. church south, who wanted to hold the property and fill vacancies on the board and elected a president who the attorneys contend has served continuously. Possession of the property was sought but refused by the Clasen interests. Epworth was closed in 1911.

Want to Conduct School. Attorney Emoryhugh formally asked the court for permission for the church to continue to run the school.

The court, when John W. Sharrel, attorney for the Clasen interests, took the case to the district court.

The attorneys in the case are: For the church, D. H. Lambhach, C. B. Stuart, A. C. Case, for the Clasen interests, John W. Sharrel, Louis Sharrel, J. B. Doolittle, and Phil D. Brewer.
